Dear Sir:

Thank you for writing Director Casey, for whom I am responding.

We certainly are supportive of your goals. As Americans we subscribe to the Jeffersonian principles to which you espouse. Beyond that, however, we are sure you understand that appropriated funds are not available at the Central Intelligence Agency, therefore, we cannot provide you any tangible assistance.

We wish you the best in your endeavor and are sorry we cannot help you.

"FREEDOM is the right to choose, the right to create for oneself the alternatives of choice. Without the possibility of choice, and the exercise of choice, a man is not a man but a member, an instrument, a thing."

Thomas Jefferson

When in the course of a nation's history, it becomes necessary for the people of that nation to reflect upon their history, acknowledge their weaknesses, chart a new direction for their future, and take command of their destiny, a decent respect for the opinions of friend and foe requires that they should take lead from those who have taken similar courses beforehand and declare their intentions.

Now, at this point in Iran's history, when evils have penetrated the very fabric of the nation, divided Iranian people in factions, set members of family against each other, placed a wedge between man and his Creator, isolated Iranians from each other and from the rest of the world, rendered nought the efforts of those who have tried to put an end to this madness, and with the knowledge that independence, liberty and democratic government in Iran will cause the return of millions of well educated and experienced homeless Iranians back to Iran, who can join their countrymen and together manage the affairs of the nation, WE THE PEOPLE, take it upon ourselves to produce and present the enclosed set of nonpartisan principles, around which Iranians can rally and unite, and upon which a new future can be chartered.

Consider these principles, if you will, conceived by the denial of a homeland, a yearning for justice, and a resolve toward creative freedoms. They are no more and no less than the objectives pronounced so resolutely by a determined people in a similar situation. A flourishing, productive nation was thusly founded on respect for the ability of the individual contributing to the whole.

We ask your support in kind and recognition of these goals.
